Cuba Strike 'A Blunder'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Fulbright, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, said today that the ill-fated Cuban invasion was a blunder for which the White House and several other agencies must share responsibility.

Rebel Chief Captured

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Capt. Manuel Artime, leader of the unsuccessful invasion of Cuba two weeks ago, was captured today, Radio Havana announced.

Artime had been hiding in the swamps of the Bay of Cochinos (Bay of Pigs) awaiting an opportunity to flee to the United States, the announcement said.

The broadcast accused Artime of having fled Cuba to join the exile army with funds from an agricultural co-operative.

Artime was a member of Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro's rebel army in the successful revolution against President Fulgencio Batista. Castro later claimed that Artime was with his forces for a period of days.

Artime told reporters in Mexico City last year that he fled Cuba after hearing an order had been issued for his execution.

Artime also said Castro wanted to establish a Tito type of communism, independent of Russia.

Six Trapped As Brig Sinks

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—A 96-foot brigantine, the Albatross, sank in the Gulf of Mexico Tuesday, trapping six of her crew below decks, it was learned today.

Thirteen other crew members, many of them reported to be teen-aged American boys, managed to get into lifeboats before the 93-ton square-rigger went down in a squall.

The Albatross was sailing on a training cruise from Progresso on Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula to Nassau in the Bahamas when the storm struck her 123 miles west of Key West, Fla.

A freighter picked up survivors. They are expected to reach Tampa Thursday.

WAS AGAINST INVASION

Fulbright is known to have warned the administration against it when he learned of the planned invasion.

One member of Fulbright's committee, Senator Frank Church (Dem., Idaho) reported that the invasion by the Cuban exiles was marked by "poorly conceived military planning."

"A dual mistake was made," Church told reporters. "Communism can not be shot down in Latin America; it must be shown up, and this should be the object of our policy."

4 Witnesses Face Arrest

The four men named by defence lawyer Robert Servatius are:

Eberhard Von Thadden, former German foreign office official concerned with Jewish affairs under the Nazi regime;

Hermann Krumey, former officer of the Nazi SS elite corps who was a subordinate of former Lt. Col. Eichmann;

Franz Six, former SS superior of Eichmann during the mid-1930s when Hitler reached supreme power in Germany;

Hans Merten, former military administrator in Nazi-occupied Salonika.

Prosecutor Gideon Hausner has told the court the four men would be arrested under Israel's anti-Nazi law if they entered the country.

EX-JUDGE COLLARED

A squabble between Seattle's ex-traffic judge, William H. Simmons, and his estranged wife, Joyce, ended like this in front of the Simmons' home.

Patrolman Wally Hinggen pulled the 33-year-old ousted judge from his station wagon after it had started up and knocked Mrs. Simmons to the pavement. Both were arrested, booked at the city jail for disturbing the peace and released. Simmons, who sued his wife for divorce last week, said he was trying to take away their youngest child. —(AP Wirephoto)

Dutch-Born, Former P.O.W. 'Wrecked Cold-War Efforts'

LONDON (CP) — A renegade British diplomat who turned to communism during three years of captivity in North Korea was sentenced today to 42 years in prison for spying for the Soviet Union.

Reuters said he wrecked much of Britain's cold war efforts.

George Blake, 38, and bearded, pleaded guilty to funneling information to Moscow for nearly nine years, between November, 1951, and September, 1959.

Blake confessed there was not a single important document to which he had access between 1951 to 1959 "which was not passed to my Soviet contact."

Although the charges were not published in detail, informants outside the court said Blake gave the Russians the names of British agents.

The court went into secret session for 34 minutes to hear the defence case after a 10-minute public hearing.

Parker said Blake had confessed for almost nine years working "continually as an agent and spy for a foreign power."

"Moreover, the information communicated, though not of a scientific nature, was clearly of the utmost importance to that power (the Soviet Union) and has rendered much of this country's efforts completely useless," he said.

"Your conduct in many other countries would undoubtedly carry the death penalty."

BORN IN NETHERLANDS

The informants said Blake was born in Rotterdam, the Netherlands, and entered the British diplomatic service after service in the Second World War with the Royal Navy.

He was vice-consul in Seoul when captured by the Communists during the Korean War in 1950, and spent three years in an internment camp. The informants said Blake and other internees were subjected to Communist attempts at brainwashing.

Blake was freed in 1953 and re-entered government service. The informants said he became a British intelligence agent, studied Russian and appeared to be a keen — but anti-Communist — student of Soviet affairs.

He is married to a British woman and has three children. At the time of his arrest three weeks ago he was attending the School of Arabic Studies in Beirut, Lebanon. The school is run by the British foreign office.

The nature of Blake's government job was not disclosed at the trial for security reasons. But Britain's attorney-general, Sir Reginald Manning-Buller, said Blake had "access to information of very great importance."

Left-Wing Army Units Ordered Cease Firing

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Commanders of the left wing forces in Laos today ordered their troops to cease fire, boosting hopes for a settlement of the East-West crisis over the tiny Indochina kingdom.

Capt. Kong Le, whose left wing paratroop forces are allied with the pro-Communist Pathet Lao guerrilla organization, told his men to halt all military activity at 8 a.m. local time today.

The Pathet Lao issued a similar order to its followers. Kong coupled his cease-fire order with a demand that the American-backed right wing government should order its men to stop fighting and meet "without delay" for peace talks.

(Western military sources in Vientiane said Tuesday night that even before Kong's order a cease-fire seemed to be in operation. The military situation was reported quiet on all fronts.

Fighting on the important front south of rebel-held Vang Vieng stopped Monday night after the first contacts between government and leftist negotiators. Further talks on a general cease-fire were reported to have taken place Tuesday.)

Kong demanded in his cease-fire order, reported by the Communist Hanoi radio in North Viet Nam, that the government should send "competent representatives" to Na Mon village, seven miles south of Vang Vieng, or to "another place" between the two front lines.

There, the two sides could discuss "regulations governing a cease-fire and armistice," Kong said.

At the same time, Kong and Prince Souphanouvong, the Pathet Lao leader, urged their troops to "heighten their vigilance and be ready to smash any provocations by the other side."

SERIOUS OFFENCE

Lord Chief Justice Lord Parker told Blake "Your case is one of the worst that can be envisaged in times of peace."

Blake appeared emotionless as he heard the sentence. A life sentence in the British penal system is terminated after 20 years. Observers said this was probably why Blake was given a specific sentence.

The judge passed sentence a little more than an hour after the trial began this morning.

Trade Fair Opens Stand

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — The wares of 37 countries went on public display here today as the second British Columbia International Trade Fair opened a 10-day stand.

Workmen stayed until the late-night hours Tuesday putting the last touches of paint to display booths and buildings at the Pacific National Exhibition, where 200,000 persons, including 7,000 buyers and purchasing agents from many world business centres, are expected to view the merchandise on show. The displays range from a Mercury space capsule — the type in which a United States astronaut is expected to make the first U.S. space flight — to a 40-foot model of the ocean liner Rotterdam.

The wares range from tachla grass works from Formosa to motor scooters from Czechoslovakia, from the latest in Paris fashions to a seven-ton diesel locomotive.

The fair, organized and sponsored by the provincial department of trade and industry, has attracted goods worth more than $30,000,000, with 17 countries staging national government displays and 20 others represented by commercial exhibitors.

The fair is staged primarily to influence buyers and sellers and to stimulate trade generally by introducing British Columbia to foreign products and foreign buyers to B.C. products.

Among the countries with large exhibits of manufactured goods is Czechoslovakia, the only Iron Curtain country with a display entered.

Japan and Formosa have entered large exhibits to give the show buildings at the PNE something of an Oriental flavor. Preview visitors Tuesday, stopping carefully to avoid the freshly-painted floors and stands, were attracted by large British, Australian and Italian displays.

'REMARKABLE' TRIAL

House Fire Set As 'Signal' Accused Douk Claims

VERNON (Staff) — Three Doukhobors were found guilty at Assize court here Tuesday of arson and were remanded in custody for sentence.

A jury decided that Mary Astaforoff (46), her husband, Peter, and a woman friend, Nastia Hadikin (75) were guilty of setting fire to a house near Grand Forks Jan. 1.

Mr. Justice Rutland described the trial "rather remarkable."

Earlier in the day, Mrs. Astaforoff told the court she and the other accused had set fire to the house as a signal seeking an investigation into the Doukhobor situation.

She said if the investigation into "60 years of suffering" was not made, "there will be many other signals... there will be other Doukhobors rise up."

JOINTLY RENTED

The Astaforoffs earlier admitted they and the friend had set fire to the home, rented jointly by them and William Plotnikoff from the B.C. Land Settlement Board, but said they felt they had not broken any of God's laws.

They were discovered standing naked in the snow outside the house watching it burn, according to two RCMP officers who arrived on the scene.

In an impassioned address before the all-male jury, the short Doukhobor woman said: "For 60 years we have been in prisons. We have suffered a lot, and many have died."

"It is time someone figured out (the Doukhobor) problem."

She also said that spiritual leader John Verigin's house had been "condemned to fire" by the Sons of Freedom.

IN TEARS

Nastia Hadikin, 75, who broke into tears midway in her short address, said the fire had been lighted "to show we are suffering."

"We have been crucified like the Lord was crucified."

Both women had to be interrupted by the judge when they launched into a religious tirade.

Crown counsel, Edgar Dewdney, in his summation, said it had been proved the offense was committed.

And he charged in a heated address, that "orthodox Doukhobors and others must be protected from members of a sect who violate laws under the disguise of religion."

Lumby Fire Losses Averaged 50 Acres Each

By Alleyne Tull Courier Correspondent

LUMBY — Lumby district losses by forest fires in 1960 are not forgotten.

At a fire protection meeting between the forest industry and the B.C. Forest Service, held Friday night in the parish hall, 24 people were told that there had been 42 fires, which averaged 50 acres each for last year.

Past fire records for Lumby ranger district show that 71 per cent of all forest fires are caused by lightning and 29 per cent by human agencies.

If 1961 is an average fire year, 22 forest fires can be anticipated and their ultimate size and cost will depend entirely upon the speed of detection and promptness of attack the meeting was told.

Ken Johnson of Lumby Planning Mills, was in the chair. Visitors were Cy Phillips, district forester; Morris Isenor, forest protection officer, and A. MacDonald, ILMA representative.

FIRE PLANNING Forest ranger for Lumby area, Verne Hopkins, explained the need for fire planning and how maximum forest protection requires close co-operation between the industry, the forest service and the general public.

"It is essential that every resident of the district be alert to spot forest fires when they start, and to report them to the forest service by the quickest available means," said Mr. Hopkins.

A few years back it was reported that Harry Johnson spotted a small fire on his way home to Trinity Valley. He extinguished the blaze with the only available liquid on hand—beer.

Displays of aerial and look-out photographs, portable radios and maps were on hand, and their use was carefully explained.

Mr. Hopkins also spoke to the pupils of Lumby Elementary School on fire protection. Last year there were two fires in the bush, above the Catt Subdivision attributed to children.

COLLECTOR'S ITEM?

Not a normal collector's item, this bucketful of broken bottles collected from just 100 feet of roadside along Capri Road by four public-spirited small boys. Boys who made the collection just to prove how anti-social some adults can get were Donald and Richard Schmok, and Kenny and Billy Wilson. So as this is a picture with a moral, here is a suggestion to all bottle slingers... instead of casting your empties on the roadside, sell them for a small profit. Or better still, give them to the Boy Scouts for their regular bottle drives. Anything but the creation of a glass encrusted highway, perleese! — (Courier photo by Eric Green)

IT'S YOUR BLOOD THEY'RE AFTER

Kelowna's Red Cross Blood Drive scheduled for May 9, 10, 11, has a target of 1,500 pints of the vital fluid.

Site of the bloodletting will be the United Church Hall and it is hoped by local Red Cross and volunteers that Kelowna will be able to wrest the inter-Valley Red Cross shield for the highest collection of blood in the Valley from its current holders, Kamloops.

Among the plans for the three-day session, is a mass attack by the local Jaycees who have pledged a veritable sea of gore to aid the drive.

There will also be a competition between business firms employing 25 people or more to see who can garner the most blood. Winner will receive a plaque donated to the memory of Mrs. Olga Horn, chairman of the drive from 1947 to 1955. Further details of the blood drive will be published later.

Chamber Has Plans For Cutoff

Kelowna and District Chamber of Commerce has two plans of action to have the Princeton-Peachland cutoff re-opened for traffic.

First plan is to ask the Canadian Pacific Railway to place a private crossing on the cut-off. The CPR closed the crossing after an accident had occurred.

Second plan of action is to attempt to have the cutoff declared a public road to bring it under governmental jurisdiction.

At the chamber's meeting Tuesday, W. M. Underwood, district engineer for the Department of Highways, said: "If the private crossing is put in, the CPR would not be held responsible for any mishaps which might occur."

It would be up to the motorists to look out for passing trains, he said.

Originally the cutoff crossed the railway track twice, but because of road revisions it would now be necessary for only one crossing to be replaced, he said.

Chamber decided to arrange for directional signs to be removed and a no-through road sign erected until such time as the cutoff went through again.

Valley Escapes U.S. Fate In Apple Growing Areas

Kelowna area fruit growers with eradication sprays in this have not been as badly affected by disease and poor weather as their Wenatchee counterparts.

Recent reports from Washington State indicate rain interference with apple tree pollination and the threat of scab.

Pear orchards are said to be threatened with fire blight.

Commenting on the reports, W. F. Morton, district horticulturist, said "It's too early for apple pollination trouble in this part of the valley."

He said the pollination here has been good for cherries. "It will be good for apples too if we get a few sunny days this weekend."

Apple scab is being fought

Fire blight in pears, he said, has been at a low ebb here for the past three years.

"We're keeping our fingers crossed. If growers haven't pruned out the diseased cankers we may be in for an upswing."

FIRE SEASON OPENS

Close Watch In Kelowna Area

A close watch is being kept on fires in the Kelowna area. Black Knight Mountain lookout, Forest Ranger Bert Hewlett said in Kelowna today.

Purpose of the early watch is to prevent illegal and dangerous grass and scrub burning.

"We'd like everybody to get burning permit regardless of how important they think it is," said Mr. Hewlett.

Scrub and bush fires have already burned over 20 acres this year in the Kelowna area. One—a 17-acre blaze at Okanagan Centre—was caused largely by lack of precautions, said the Ranger.

Officially, the 1961 fire season started on Monday, and continues until the end of October unless shortened or lengthened by order-in-council by the provincial cabinet. During the whole of that time, special fire permits are required by anyone before they can light a fire for any purpose whatsoever within one-half mile of a forest or woodland.

FEW EXEMPT

Only those fires set in the proper facilities in provincial camp and picnic sites or in supervised commercial camps are exempt from this permit requirement.

Portable pressure stoves for cooking do not need a permit.

Campfire permits are available from any B.C. Forest Service office or any establishment displaying a Campfire Permits Issued Here sign.

Last year, B.C. suffered the brunt of 4,113 forest fires which swept over a total of 285,820 acres of which 135,000 acres carried merchantable or immature timber. Over 122,000,000 cubic feet of merchantable timber with a potential commercial lumber value of some $44,000,000 were destroyed. In addition, $2,500,000 in potential stumpage revenue to the province was lost.

HARDEST HIT

B.C. Forest Service firefighting costs for the year totalled $5,000,000 and industrial firefighting costs added another $500,000.

The hardest hit area of the province last year was the Kamloops Forest District, including Kelowna, which recorded 1,157 fires costing $2,828,068 to extinguish which represented almost 59 per cent of total firefighting costs.

Next came the Nelson Forest District with 621 fires costing $1,302,182, followed by Prince George with 529 fires ($803,954); Vancouver District, 1,860 fires ($102,748); and Prince Rupert District, 140 fires ($60,466). Fifty per cent of the total number of fires occurred in the month of July.

As has been the case for several years, the most costly type of fire was that caused by lightning. In 1960, there were 1,166 lightning fires costing $3,245,000 to extinguish, doing $2,869,000 damage, and burning over 197,000 acres.

The 137 logging operation fires cost $663,000 to extinguish, did $589,000 worth of damage and burned over 30,000 acres; followed by 82 brush-burning fires, costing $262,000 to extinguish, doing damage of $30,000 and burning over 1,900 acres.

Recreational and smoke-caused fires numbered 498, cost $249,000 to fight, did $303,908 worth of damage, and burned over 15,000 acres.

The deadly serious business of preparing for the 1961 fire season has been going on at each forest ranger station since even before the end of last season.

It is a large and complex job that adds considerably to the already heavy burden of general forest management work carried by the modern ranger throughout the year. It is, however, an annual burden that must not be shirked.

Mr. Hewlett said: "In this task we appreciate every assistance given us by the general public. We only have a

Canadian Politics Are In A Fluid State Now

Perhaps the political situation in Canada has not been as involved as at present since the 1921 chaotic election won by the late W. L. Mackenzie King. The situation is such that most experts if asked to express an opinion about the next election just side-track the subject. The truth is that it is impossible at the moment to even attempt a reasonable forecast. There are many, too many, imponderables.

In the first place there is some doubt about the election date itself. A few weeks ago a federal minister suggested that an election might be not many months away. This, of course, might be a deliberate attempt to confuse the opposition parties and to serve, too, to alert the local Conservative groups.

However there are few who expect a general election this year. The results of the four forthcoming by-elections may change the picture but certainly neither the political situation of the government or the economic condition of the country are such as to suggest it would be a propitious time for the government to seek a vote of confidence.

Mr. Diefenbaker, however, calls the tune and he is a person of sudden impulses, so the possibility of an election this year is still with us. But whether or not it happens this year, we will be to all intents and purposes in the midst of an election campaign for the next few months. Every party during these months will be attempting to improve its own position.

When one considers the huge majority the Conservatives have in the House, it is rather amazing that there should be the slightest doubt about the results of the next election. Certainly the majority suggests that the government would be returned for another term, even with a smaller majority. But even this huge majority can no longer be taken for granted. The political wind has changed. As evidence of this there are the provincial elections in Quebec, New Brunswick, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. In each case the Conservatives were harshly treated and in several federal by-elections they fared little better.

Then, too, just recently, the Gallup poll showed that the Liberals had gained strength nationally and now led the Conservatives. This is amazing when one considers the Conservative sweep of three years ago.

These and other indications suggest that the Diefenbaker government has lost popular support to a greater extent and with a faster tempo than any other government since that of the late R. B. Bennett who had the misfortune to assume power in the midst of the "hungry thirties".

While the government has been losing ground, the Liberals have been gaining strength. This, it would seem, has been primarily due to Mr. Lester Pearson's ability to put Humpty-Dumpty—his completely shattered party—together again. Then, too, Mr. Pearson, while he has made mistakes, has increased in personal prestige and is emerging from a shadow image to a personality. The fact that he has constantly advocated the formation of an "Atlantic community"—described as a dream by the government—and that this is now being advocated by Britain and, perhaps, the United States, should tend to increase his stature further.

The question, of course, is can the present Liberal momentum be maintained and increased sufficiently to upset the government despite its huge majority? Or, conversely, can Mr. Diefenbaker check and then reverse the trend of dwindling popularity of his government? These are the things which will be watched closely these coming months.

There are many things which affect the results in a general election. National issues are important but in a country such as Canada there is bound to be a wide divergence of opinion and those opinions are affected by regional problems. This makes it possible for one party to find its prospects excellent in one section of the country and very poor indeed in another section. Broadly, the country for political purposes can be divided into the Maritimes, Quebec, Ontario and the West, which in turn can be subdivided in the prairies and British Columbia. The same problem will provoke different viewpoints in each region and influence the voting to a greater or lesser extent in one than the other.

There used to be a saying that to form the government, a party had to win Quebec. While this is no longer completely true, certainly Quebec did play a major role in electing Mr. Diefenbaker. But now it would seem the honeymoon is over and the Conservatives' position in Quebec is deteriorating rapidly. To win and hold Quebec, a strong French-Canadian leader is required. Here the late W. L. Mackenzie King excelled. Mr. Diefenbaker has never been able to find a strong French-Canadian to lead his Quebec forces. On the other hand, the Liberals appear to have found another in Mr. Jean Lesage, who seems to be in a position to return Quebec to the Liberal fold.

Should the government lose most of its present Quebec supporters, it would be in dire straits. It would have to find its majority outside Quebec and while not impossible, this is almost improbable.

But Quebec alone, while a very nice foundation, cannot put the Liberals back in power. To upset the government and be elected themselves they must make substantial gains in Ontario. And probably some, too, in the Maritimes.

In Ontario, the recent opinion poll showed the Liberals running somewhat ahead of the Conservatives. In that province there is much manufacturing and many of these industries are flourishing because of various protection devices and tariffs. The government would seem to be leaning toward these areas and their solutions to their problems, even at the risk of losing ground in the Maritimes and the low-tariff west.

This problem also faces the Liberals as their right-wing is in Ontario and, naturally favors protection. The Liberals must regain lost support in Ontario and at the same time cannot afford to lose any support in the Maritimes. Mr. Pearson and Mr. Diefenbaker both have a nice tight-rope walking performance.

West of the Lakehead, the Liberals hold only one seat. They can do no worse and can expect to improve their position. In the four western provinces, the Conservatives hold all but five seats. They, therefore, can only expect to lose some—perhaps, many. At the moment, the West does look more promising for the Liberals than the government.

There are, of course, the two splinter parties to consider. Social Credit as a national party is certainly not making any headway. Its leaders however probably will make every effort to regain some of their Alberta seats. They make take a few.

The yet unnamed Labor-CCF party remains a very big question mark. It probably will not extend eastward to any extent. Mr. Douglas, who apparently is destined to be its leader, may bring to it a body of personal votes, but the party is already finding it difficult to reconcile its opinions on several issues, especially on defence. It is unlikely that this party will be a dominant factor in this election.

There is another large question mark over the whole situation: Mr. Diefenbaker's spellbinding platform manner. Has it worn a trifle thin? Or will he be able to produce it again in full flower at the appropriate time and charm its listeners into supporters? Those are questions which only time can answer.

Look at it from any angle, the Canadian political situation at the moment is fluid, in a state of flux. The trend of the drift in the next few months will decide the results of the next general election—when it comes.

Brand Name Test Kitchens

Have you ever wondered how those delightful delicious recipes get on the label of the brand name product you buy? It isn't easy! But once it makes the grade, you can be sure that it was rated and judged with more scrutiny than were the young ladies who competed for the Miss America title.

Every ingredient in every recipe, every word in the recipe's directions—all are judged by a jury of trained home economists, food technicians, professional tasters and people who just like to eat. Every time a recipe is tested it is submitted to a group of food specialists with educated palates. If their reaction is not favorable, that particular recipe will never appear on the package and you will never meet with the disappointment of a poor tasting dish. If the recipe is for a main dish it may be judged for a number of points such as nutrition, flavor, eye appeal. If the recipe is for a cake, cookie or pie, it may be judged by its flavor, texture, mixing method or original decorating idea. Constant testing is being done to simplify using or opening a package, the best way to store a product or to judge a product's keeping quality, or to determine whether the average homemaker can prepare the recipe with ordinary kitchen utensils or equipment.

Recipes don't just happen, nor are they picked out of thin air as possibilities for development. Most ideas for recipes are brought to brand name kitchens by experienced staff members who travel throughout the country and who are in constant contact with homemakers everywhere. The result is a melting pot or cross section of ideas that basically originate with the American public... a collection of ideas and suggestions that indicate their likes, dislikes and preferences. From this melting pot of ideas, the recipe suggestions are presented to experienced food authorities in company test kitchens and new recipes are created to bring more food pleasure and variety into your home for you and your family to enjoy.

Ideas that add glamor touches to a serving dish, menu ideas for buffets, Sunday brunches, barbecue techniques, wedding receptions, teenage entertaining... all come from the busy test kitchens of brand name companies on whom you can depend for quality and variety in your day-to-day living plans.

Part Of Olympic Games Schedule Are The Beefs

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Canada has a reasonable chance of staging the 1968 Winter Olympic Games and if this happens the organizers must be prepared for a bundle of beifs.

Squawking and finding fault is an old Olympic custom. Historians need not go further back for proof than the 1950 Winter Games at Squaw Valley, Calif. They were born in rhubarbs, grew up in squabbles. Problems galore sprung up over finances and personnel. The location in the high Sierra of California eventually became known as Squaw Valley. Canadian officials were there and they got a pretty good idea of what to expect if the Games ever come to this country. Banff in the Canadian Rockies is a 1968 contender and a decision by the International Olympic Committee is scheduled for early 1963. Just like the Squaw Valley people, Canadians have been unrealistic about finances. For instance, the California organizers figured on about $4,500,000 to stage the Games. Total costs were more than $16,000,000.

Sponsors of the Banff site thought $4,000,000 could take care of the 1968 costs. And Garibaldi Park in British Columbia, which made an unsuccessful bid, came up with a figure of $10,800,000. An engineering company surveyed the sites and estimated costs of administration, buildings and so on, at much higher figures. The Banff site, it said, would cost about $10,000,000 and Garibaldi $20,900,000.

BUSHEL OF BEEFS
That's just the cost angle. Consider the petty complaints of officials of the various sports governing bodies and some athletes can dream up. Here are a few that came out of Squaw Valley, although many disappeared with the running of the events.

A Canadian hockey official, manager Ernie Goman of the Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, called the one outdoor rink reserved for practice for the nine teams a "barnyard."

Other hockey officials were more outspoken. They threatened to pull out of the Games and stage a world tournament in Los Angeles if the organizers didn't do something about the ice in the main arena that was bathed in sunlight and if the organizers would not schedule night games.

Olympic officials put up a curtain of rope that kept out the sunlight and stuck to their original schedule that called for day games. The hockey people cooled out.

BLAMED ICE
A speed skater contended a faulty course caused her to fall during the 1,000-metre race costing her a gold medal. Officials ruled her fall had nothing to do with ice conditions.

Before the Games, there was much discussion over whether the men's downhill ski run would be an adequate test. The complaints disappeared when the event got under way.

Hockey players were angry because figure skaters, during a period of troubles with the ice in the main arena, always got priority.

Newspaper, radio and television men, who were forced to stay eight to 18 miles from Squaw Valley, were loud in their beifs. Athletes complained of thefts in the Olympic village and some were critical of the accommodation.

When it was all over the figures showed that only an estimated $2,475,000 was taken in during the 11 days of the Games. This is roughly what officials estimate would be the revenue if Banff got the 1968 Games.

DIVERS DROWNED
Skin-diving and underwater fishing have taken the lives of 10 divers in the Mediterranean and Atlantic Ocean off the European coast in the last three years.

Scientists Quits For Peace Quest

TORONTO (CP)—An Edmonton-born scientist has abandoned his career to attempt to build a "bridge of reason" to world peace.

Dr. Norman Alcock, a wartime member of the research team that developed radar, decided two years ago at the age of 41 to leave his executive post with a company developing radioactive isotopes for industrial use and devote himself to the task of preventing nuclear war.

The result of his deliberations, outlined in a 40-page booklet published at his own expense, is a plan to recruit a hard core of dedicated scientists throughout the world in Peace Research Institutes.

The institutes, working independently of each other and of their national governments but in close co-ordination would deal scientifically with problems creating international tension.

In his pamphlet, Dr. Alcock argues that the danger of world war must be dealt with by the methods of science and reason because they are "the most powerful tools available to man."

"It was man's ability to reason critically in the physical sciences that caused his phenomenal progress in technology... It was his ability to reason critically in the biological sciences that caused him to rid himself of his ancient ailments and diseases and to grow food in abundance."

"And it will be his ability to reason critically in the social sciences that will bring about equal advances in the field of social diseases. The greatest of these is war."

WORK FOR GOVERNMENT
Under the plan, the institutes would be financed partly by government subsidies and contracts to undertake specific projects assigned by national defence and external affairs departments and partly by private donations and subscriptions.

Among early projects to be undertaken by the institutes are problems relating to disarmament and the prevention of accidental war.

Western institutes, Dr. Alcock suggests, might give high priority to a study of the effects on the economy of a Western country of transition from a cold war to a peace economy. Businessmen must be shown an alternative source of income to replace their defence contracts, such as aid to underdeveloped countries.

OTTAWA REPORT

Case of Too Many Whys

By PATRICK NICHOLSON
What Canada needs today, more than "a distinctive national flag" or even than a national anthem, is a prayer that would be answered. Canada's national prayer to a benevolent supreme power would go like this: "Give us this day a market for all that we can produce, and give us cash or credit sufficient to buy all we need."

The fulfillment of this prayer ranks as our most urgent need today, after the outlawing of the nuclear bomb.

So when our House of Commons jumped unexpectedly into a two-day debate on possible ways and means of answering this National Prayer, many thinking people expected a constructive, intelligent and attention-grabbing discussion.

One of the kernels of our trading problems—and despite optimistic figures, let us not kid ourselves that our trade is free of serious problems—has long centered around our own and other nations' proposals for the greatest possible expansion of world trade. A proposal originally advanced by Canada, but subsequently implemented by our friends rather than by ourselves, is the creation of a tariff-free market among the nations forming the Atlantic community.

PEARSON'S DREAM
Just ten years ago, Hon. Lester (Mike) Pearson, today the leader of the Liberal Opposition but then a cabinet minister, foresaw the solution of our need in these words: "Our North Atlantic alliance may provide the foundation for a great co-operative economic commonwealth of the western world which one day may become a political commonwealth. You may say that this is unrealistic nonsense but I suggest that in this jet-propelled atomic age no plan less than this will be adequate, no vision less than this will do."

It was a fascinating study. But one sensed a muddled attitude of "Who cares?" Only 40 Conservatives, a scant 20 Liberals, and but one CCF MP were in the House. The galleries contained 22 members of the public, five diplomats, two journalists and four officials.

While Mr. Pearson himself was speaking, his own supporters, even those in the seats nearest to him, were reading newspapers, writing letters, gossiping together or even sleeping. Six ministers were present, and all listening carefully, but other Tories were too deep in trivialities to bother about Canada's great problem.

"The ultimate objective," he continued, "remains a commonwealth of the free world."

But Mr. Pearson and his colleagues in the Liberal cabinet consistently refused to attempt to lead the nations of the Atlantic community into that promised land—despite the urging of some far-sighted MPs on the Opposition benches, especially two named John Diefenbaker and Gordon Churchill.

Why?

SAME EXCUSES
The wheel turned full circle at the general election of 1957. John Diefenbaker became prime minister; Gordon Churchill became minister of trade. Advocates of an economic strengthening of the Atlantic community had stepped into positions where they could implement their ideas. Ideas which, of course, had played a significant part in winning their election.

And that same reversal by the voters had thrown out Mike Pearson, Paul Martin and other Liberals, who had stood pat against the idea of that "economic commonwealth of the Western World."

But in last week's debate on our foreign trading picture, we saw just how full has been the turn of the wheel.

John Diefenbaker and Gordon Churchill were alert listeners on the government benches, while Mike Pearson from the Opposition benches chided the Conservative Government for not discussing with our neighbors and allies the building up of an Atlantic free trade community.

It was a fascinating study. But one sensed a muddled attitude of "Who cares?" Only 40 Conservatives, a scant 20 Liberals, and but one CCF MP were in the House. The galleries contained 22 members of the public, five diplomats, two journalists and four officials.

Six ministers were present, and all listening carefully, but other Tories were too deep in trivialities to bother about Canada's great problem.

Why? Why? There are so many whys!

Trapped Jews Left A Legacy

By ARYE WALLENSTEIN
TEL AVIV (Reuters)—More than 1,800 years ago a band of Jewish rebels led by their courageous prince, Simon Bar-Kochba, died of hunger or by the sword in caves where they were trapped by Roman legionnaires.

But the ancient warriors lived long enough to bequeath a legacy to future Israelis. The hot and dry climate of the Judean wilderness did the rest, preserving the message of antiquity.

Last year, a team of archaeologists headed by Prof. Yigael Yadin uncovered in a large cave a bundle of letters from Bar-Kochba to local commanders. But Yadin felt the cave had not given up all its secrets.

Recently, he returned to the cave in the Judean cliffs and proved himself right. Yadin, one of Israel's leading experts on the Dead Sea scrolls, returned with a valuable collection of discoveries.

They included a complete leather scroll tied with pieces of string, and bundles of papyrus, some of them sheathed in a hollow reed and others bound together "like bunches of asparagus."

It will be some time before scholars complete the painstaking task of separating the easily-breakable pieces of papyrus and decipher their message. But the discoveries already have Israeli experts in a mood of tantalized excitement.

In addition to the ancient documents, Yadin and his team found several other treasures left behind by the rebels. There was a hand-mirror shaped like a ping-pong ball, white lacquered jewel box with more than 7 cents.

No Sound Cure For Disease Which Kills 50 Every Year

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
TORONTO (CP)—Forty to 50 Canadians die every year of encephalitis, a disease with a wide variety of causes and symptoms and no reliable medical cure.

Because of the lethargy usually displayed by its sufferers, it is often known to the layman as sleeping sickness. But unlike African sleeping sickness, which infects the bloodstream, encephalitis is an inflammation of the brain. Depending on the type involved, it may be harmless or fatal to up to 70 per cent of its victims.

Although encephalitis is transmitted by a virus, it cannot be passed on from one human to another. Its most common causes are insect bites, insect-borne viruses and cold sores developed by newborn infants and allergies in approximately one in 5,000 victims of measles or chicken pox. The rare case occurs as a result of poisoning among industrial workers.

Only the allergic variety has proved responsive to treatment. Drugs of the cortisone family, developed in the last 10 years, have dealt effectively with some cases of this type.

A vaccine has also been developed to protect horses, the only other animal known to suffer from the disease. But non-allergic encephalitis committed by a virus, it cannot be treated by medical efforts to find a cure.

"The body's own resistance just has to fight it out," a virologist explained.

Symptoms of the disease vary so widely that it has frequently been confused with other ailments. In the early stages a patient may suffer from fever, headaches, double vision and belching the popular nickname—insomnia.

Gradually, scientists are finding out more about encephalitis. The insect-borne variety, which produces some 20 to 40 cases a year in Canada, is most rare.

A milder form of the disease, the mosquito-borne variety, often occurs in the population of the area and is frequently mistaken for polio because of the headaches, nausea and fever that are among its most common symptoms.

Despite its fearsome sounding name, meningo-encephalitis usually lasts four to seven days and its patients invariably recover.

The mosquito-borne strains of encephalitis are most commonly found in the United States but occasionally spread into Canada. A recently-discovered native Canadian strain occurs in the shield area of Northern Ontario and is believed to be carried by ticks infesting squirrels.

Because of the sparse human population of the area and the natural elusiveness of squirrels, cases of this type are extremely rare.

Only a few varieties of the disease are known. The bird itself is unaffected by the virus, but the virus, after an incubation period of a few days, is passed on through its blood stream to another mosquito. ## THEATRE

'Free Bird' Is Surya

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP)—She's alluring, alone—and delighted. "Now I am a free bird!" exclaims Surya Kumari, the exotic find of this theatrical season on Broadway.

A stage-screen star in her homeland, India, Surya (whose name means Daughter of the Sun) slipped around the globe to get away from fame. Now gathering, she is grateful but modest about trust to the effects of screen and publicity at her work prominence and where "it was impossible at the Jan Hus Theatre.

"It doesn't make me big," she says. "There are hundreds with talent and beauty, but it is the opportunity that brings these out."

One reviewer saluted her as "the most ravishing young woman on the New York stage." Said another: "She is so exquisite in appearance, so appealing in manner that she can be appreciated in any language and philosophy." A third: "Lovely and sensuous."

Miss Kumari, who is black-eyed, five-foot-6½ and in her late 20s. "It is always best to leave a little mystery," discusses herself with Western ease and Asian tact.

"I am so happy to be able to go about here without people to get away from fame. Now gathering, she is grateful but modest about trust to the effects of screen and publicity at her work prominence and where "it was impossible

Surya set off to New York and London on a brief visit in 1958, her musical ability caught the attention of movie producers in her native city of Madras when she was nine years old.

"I was a beautiful singer—I think I still am," says the lady who has made more than 100 recordings. "My brother and I used to compete to see who could reach a higher note. My voice could be heard for two or three furlongs."

During the next four years she appeared in 10 feature films, was acclaimed "the Shirley Temple of southern India." Then she withdrew from public gaze for four years of intensive education.

Later, she made movies in three Indian languages and one in English and then, with her own company, toured in classic dramas as far as New Delhi.

Pretty Evening Wedding At The First United Church

The First United Church was charmingly decorated with spring flowers for the April wedding of Constance Elizabeth daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dmetro Markewich and Harvey Thomas Gourlie, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Gourlie of Kelowna.

The Reverend H. S. Leitch officiated, and the soloist Mr. Ernest Burnett sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "Walk with God," accompanied by Dr. Ivan Beadle at the organ.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was radiant in a gown of delustered satin with a full floor length skirt sweeping into a long train at the back. The fitted bodice was of lace with a rounded neckline and long lily point sleeves, and her pendant and earrings were a gift from the groom. A small pearl cornet held her chapel length veil and she carried a cascade bouquet of tea roses and stephanotis.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Eleanor Bulach, and the bridesmaids were Miss Constance Morrison and the bride's cousin Miss Sylvia Markewich, all of Kelowna, and Miss Joyce Vincent, niece of the groom, acted as junior bridesmaid. They were dressed identically in blue dresses with lace bodices, three quarter length sleeves and rounded necklines, whose full skirts were of organza over taffeta, and they carried bouquets of yellow roses and daffodils.

Mr. Nick Bulach acted as best man and the ushers were Mr. Glenn Nelles of Nelson and Mr. Howard Woods of Westbank.

After the ceremony a reception was held at Tingles Restaurant where the mother of the bride received in a beige lace dress with a waist length jacket, a pink hat and gloves and beige accessories, complemented with a corsage of pink sweetheart roses. The groom's mother chose a smart dress of green silk print with matching jacket, and she wore a beige hat and accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ron Corbett and family, Mr. and Mrs. Phil

AROUND TOWN

Congratulations to the Kelowna High School Band and Orchestras who made us very proud of their successes at the British Columbia Musical Festival.

The Kelowna Band won first place for High School Bands, Class A, and the Kelowna Junior Symphony Orchestra won the Shelly Cup with a total of 92 marks. Both were conducted by Mr. J. G. McKinley. The Kelowna grade 11 and 12 String Group, ably conducted by Murray Hill, also won first place for Small Orchestras of between six and 12 players.

Our musicians combined their trip to the B.C. Festival with an exchange trip with Mark Rose's New Westminster High School Band which played in Kelowna last week. After leaving by Greyhound bus they spent the first night in Langley where they were entertained at supper but did not play, and then continued on to the Festival at PNE in Vancouver where they played their winning numbers in the afternoon, returning later to New Westminster where they gave a very successful evening concert at the Vincent Massey High School which was followed by a party in their honor.

Saturday they returned to Langley in the evening for a Band Conference. There were seven groups present there from Victoria; the Lake Compo School at Coquitlam; the Vancouver Technical School; New Westminster High School and the Kelowna Band and Orchestras, and after the conference the Kelowna Band played for the evening's dancing.

On arriving back in Kelowna by bus on Sunday they were surprised and delighted to be met by the fire trucks and driven in state back to the High School where they were welcomed by Mayor R. F. Parkinson, Mr. Cecil Sladen, chairman of the School Board; Mr. C. A. Bruce, principal of the Kelowna High School, and the president of the Student Council, Ralph Currie, each of whom spoke a few words of congratulations.

Other adults on the trip besides Mr. McKinley were Mr. Mel Barwick, vice-principal of the High School and Mr. and Mrs. Boris. Mr. Boris was in charge of instrument transportation and Mrs. Boris acted as nurse.

Altogether this was a highly satisfactory expedition, and as I said Kelowna is very proud of her musical students.

Mr. and Mrs. Walley Lightbody of Vancouver visited Mrs. Lightbody's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Walter Anderson last weekend.

Visiting Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Hobson recently were Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Bregg with their two children Danny and Kenny from Vancouver. Mrs. Bregg is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hobson and Danny and Kenny are great grandchildren.

Canadian Nurses Attend Congress

By Elizabeth Motherwell
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Seventy Canadian nurses have set off to Australia to join 2,000 nurses from 33 other countries for meetings in Melbourne April 17-22.

They are attending the 12 congress of the International Council of Nurses at which professional problems will be discussed.

Many of the Canadians are taking world tours, visiting health and hospital services, while travelling to and from Australia. Some nurses from other countries are including Canada in their itinerary.

Canadian nurses will have a leading role in the congress, first in the Pacific area, and will be bidding, along with Britain and West Germany, to play host to the next meeting in 1965.

Alice Girard, who retired last year as president of the Canadian Nurses' Association, will address the congress on opening day. The assistant director of general nursing services at St. Luke's Hospital, Montreal, will discuss professional nursing services.

Helen Carpenter of Toronto, current president of the 60,559-member association, and Pearl Stiver of Ottawa, executive director, will attend preliminary policy meetings in Wellington, New Zealand, of the international council's board of directors.

Miss Carpenter is assistant professor at the University of Toronto school of nursing.

Miss Stiver, experienced in all phases of her profession from bedside nursing to public health administration, will represent Canada on two committees—public relations and exchange privileges. The latter arranges an exchange of nurses through member nations.

Among other Canadian nursing leaders attending the congress are Electra MacLennan, director and associate professor of nursing at Dalhousie University, Halifax, and first vice-president of the Canadian association, and Margaret Kerr of Montreal, executive director of the monthly publication, Canadian Nurse.

Glenmore Community Club Disbands After 15 Years

Glenmore Community Club, which was formed fifteen years ago, was disbanded at the annual meeting held last week in the Activity Room of the Glenmore Elementary School. The inception of the Glenmore Recreation Commission, overlapped the Community Club which had served in that capacity, helping to further the recreational activities of all ages. The organization will in future be known as the Glenmore Recreation Commission, with the newly formed executive to become executive members of the Commission, and all assets and liabilities to be assumed by the said Commission. The new executive includes the following: President, Clarence Hume; Secretary, Wm. Visser; treasurer, Frank Brown; with a committee of W. F. Morton, Mary Serwa, and Shirley Stewart.

The retiring executive and class instructors reported an active year. Mr. C. J. Hallisey for the badminton group reported a season of good sport and comradeship, with a membership of 20 persons. He suggested that it would be advisable next season to have separate classes for juniors and seniors.

Harry Cox who conducted the Saturday morning gymnastics said that the response was "heart warming". He recommended a continuation of the classes, with a division of the present group into two groups. He suggested that the Dr. Knox Jr.-Sr. High School gym would be adequate. During the year under review the Activity Room of the Glenmore Elementary School has been utilized.

Mr. P. O. Suter, who with Mrs. Suter instructed junior square dancers, told of the various problems encountered with far more girls than boys turning out for classes. He said that some thought should be given to remedying the situation another year and suggested a small monthly fee per child, with a display at the end of the season as an inducement to those attending. Mr. George Fyall who took over as instructor in January, said that he would like to assist again next fall, and hoped that the teenagers too, might show an interest in classes at that time.

Wrestling instructor Keith Maltman's report revealed an average attendance of 15-18 boys at classes, with up to 32 on one evening, from many outside districts. Better equipment and facilities are needed for next fall, with Mr. Maltman suggesting the Dr. Knox Jr.-Sr. School gym, or the Centennial Hall.

The three card parties held after Christmas were fairly well attended. Bridge, whist and cribbage were played.

The Community Club also sponsored the Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs in Glenmore. Thirty-five boys of the latter group are enrolled, so a new pack may be formed in the fall. More assistance will be needed, it was emphasized.

Mrs. S. Pearson reported that 74 Community Club memberships were sold, throughout the season.

President J. R. Hume in his report suggested that the future executive study the matter of a registration fee for each class rather than a membership ticket which covers all activities. He too felt that a larger gym would be advantageous.

Totems, Bucks All Tied Up On Arnett's Winning Goal

SEATTLE (CP)—Burly Frank Arnett, who has led the Western Hockey League in penalties the last two years, took advantage of a late Tuesday night during a Portland line change in the WHL final to score the winning goal and give the Totems a 3-2 overtime victory over the Bucks.

The win deadlocked the best-of-seven final series 2-2 with the fifth and sixth games scheduled here Thursday and Saturday night. If a seventh is needed it will be played in Portland on a date yet to be set.

Arnett, in the Portland zone early in the sudden-death overtime period, found himself with a loose puck. He skated 20 feet toward the Portland net and blasted in a hard slap shot.

It capped a brilliant defensive performance by the Totems and net-minder Bev Bentley in particular. Also sharing the spotlight for Seattle was defenseman Gord Tansley, whose crunching body checks helped slow down the Portland attack, and Gerry Leonard in the third. Although outshot 29-18 in the third, the Totems were never headed. The teams split two by Barney Drake and Art Jones.

The game was the cleanest of the series with only two penalties. Seattle's goals were scored by Rudy Filion in the second period and Arnett in the first period.

Sonny Is Not Included In Patterson's Plans

NEW YORK (AP)—Cusumano, D'Amato said in an interview Tuesday.

D'Amato has supplied the answer to Sonny Liston's one-man boxing campaign for a world heavyweight title bout with champion Floyd Patterson.

"Liston is not included in Patterson's plans at all," snapped D'Amato, chief of the Patterson advisory staff. "Not at all."

That, of course, brings up the question of how much D'Amato has to say about Patterson's professional activity. Floyd has said he now is making his own decisions.

If D'Amato is talking for Patterson—the champ was unavailable for comment—Liston will not be the only hopeful who will remain on the outside looking in until the end of the year.

"Patterson will not fight anything this year who has a future," D'Amato said.

Father Murphy's friendship with Liston was disclosed in Philadelphia, Tuesday.

Father Murphy said he believes Liston was "just kidding" when he told reporters in Philadelphia that the priest might manage him.

"I don't know anything about that part of boxing," Father Murphy said.

"My interests in Sonny are in the nature of encouraging him to keep going on the right path, to help him maintain his respectability."

Priest Helps Sonny Liston

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—A Denver priest, Rev. Edward Murphy, said Tuesday night he is giving counsel to Sonny Liston, first-ranked contender for Floyd Patterson's heavyweight boxing title.

LISTON OBTAINED A RELEASE FOR $75,000 from his former manager, Pepe Barone. Patterson said one reason he has not given Liston a title shot is the associates he claims are behind the contender.

Father Murphy said he believes Liston was "just kidding" when he told reporters in Philadelphia that the priest might manage him.

"I don't know anything about that part of boxing," Father Murphy said.

"My interests in Sonny are in the nature of encouraging him to keep going on the right path, to help him maintain his respectability."

Bible Backs Medical Aid

By BURTON H. FERN, M.D.

Dear doctor: What would our Lord think of today's medical profession that capitalizes on misery and studies pagan, unchristian methods in medical schools?

Mr. A. N.

Dear Mr. N.: Some doctors are after your money, but many more want only to relieve human suffering.

Young medics have a hard time forgiving their debtors when creditors won't forgive their debts but demand prompt payments.

Even the Bible suggests that the sick deserve medical help. (Matthew 7:12.)

Dear doctor: Is it harmful to swallow the grounds at the bottom of a cup of instant coffee?

Miss B. B.

Dear Miss B.: Your instant coffee will all dissolve if you simmer it for a few minutes.

The grounds are no grounds for worry. If coffee grounds were harmful, espresso epidemics would have shattered the beat generation long ago!

CURED OF TB

Dear doctor: Tuberculosis can be cured. My daughter, caught just before her wedding, and her beau ran out when he heard the news.

Now, two years later, she's cured and engaged to another young man.

Mrs. F. M.

Dear Mrs. M.: That old white plague really made your daughter's first beau show his true colors! How lucky that those TB germs struck before she had ext. Address your letters to Dr. to depend on his promise " . . . Fern in care of this newspaper.

Dear doctor: Can a person become an alcoholic by drinking 1 1/2 to 2 quarts of beer daily?

Mrs. B. G.

Dear Mrs. G.: What you drink and how much doesn't make you an alcoholic. The alcoholic depends on alcohol the way an addict depends on dope - to escape from an unbearable everyday world.

Anyone who needs two quarts of beer daily to float into this paradise is already an alcoholic.

STRENUOUS SPORTS

Dear doctor: Our doctor says that our son can go out for football and basketball even though he suffered two severe attacks of acute (glomerular) nephritis.

Won't strenuous sports hurt him?

Mrs. R. S.

Dear Mrs. S.: Not if he's completely recovered from both bouts and is taking penicillin to prevent a third attack.

Why not take the word of your own doctor? You trusted him with your son's life twice already!

Dr. Fern's mailbox is wide open for letters from readers. While he cannot undertake to answer individual letters, he will plug really made your daughter's first beau show his true colors! How lucky that those TB germs struck before she had ext. Address your letters to Dr. to depend on his promise " . . . Fern in care of this newspaper.

OPERATION HOTSHOT

Laotian government soldiers load supplies to truck from U.S. Air Force C-130 transport (background) at Vientiane airport. Six C-130 transport aircraft began "Operation Hotshot," a supply flight from the Philippines to Vientiane, after Washington made it clear that supplies will continue to pour into royal Lao army forces until a cease-fire is established and verified.

New Zealand Begins Big Battle With Conscience

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

WELLINGTON (CP) — New Zealand is engaged in another round in its long-term struggle with its conscience over lotteries.

The conflict has been going on for a half-century or more. Official opinion, backed by strong sectors of the populace, opposes gambling and especially outright lotteries.

But the reality is that a large proportion of the people do in fact find ways to put money into lotteries. They like a gamble and are determined to get it.

And the trouble is that money spent on unauthorized lotteries mostly goes abroad, with little benefit to either government or good works in New Zealand.

For years the government tried to ban the buying of tickets in overseas lotteries, especially those in Australia. A continuous contest in ingenuity was conducted between the government and the lottery agents.

Prosecutions of sellers brought only slight pauses for new arrangements to be made. And since so many thousands of people bought tickets, it was hopeless to prosecute buyers.

STARTED ITS OWN
Exchange control presented a greater problem, but various ingenious ways around the difficulty were devised.

Eventually, the government capitulated to the extent of permitting a local lottery in New Zealand, disguised under the title "art union." It saved its conscience on this occasion by directing that a substantial proportion of receipts be devoted to specific charities.

But the Australian lotteries offered bigger and more spectacular prizes and continued to be a major draw. Finding it could not suppress the traffic in tickets, another government made a deal with the Australian lottery doing the most business in New Zealand. Under this arrangement, the New Zealand government receives 10 cents by way of tax on every 75-cent ticket sold. The lottery gets more or less official sanction in return.

But, despite all such arrangements, a heavy loss of overseas exchange from various lotteries continues. One estimate is that the annual outflow to Australian lotteries, British football pools, the Irish sweep and other similar organizations is about $2,000,000.

The government would like to save this exchange loss, and the charities which at present benefit from the local "art union" are continually pressing for bigger grants.

A plan now is under consideration for the establishment of a much bigger New Zealand lottery, offering prizes of about $85,000 at each drawing, compared with about $17,000 at present. This would offer much stronger competition with the Australian lotteries and would allow higher grants to charity.

Beat Heat This Way

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: Tattle-tale neuroses, a way to beat the heat and blues in the night.

SIGNALS OF EMOTION
Cold feet, blushing and hair color can tip a doctor off to the possibility his patient's troubles may be emotional.

"For some reason, flashy, artificially colored platinum blonde hair is often affected by neurotic women," says Dr. Leonard L. Layman of the Cleveland Clinic in the magazine, Consultant.

"An old lady who finds it necessary to color her fading grey hair jet black is also suspect. Over-plucked and painted eyebrows are another common and dependable sign of emotional trouble; such a manoeuvre is permissible in a model or show girl, but not in a secretary or housewife."

Other tip-offs: Large wet spots of perspiration left on the examining table sheet, wearing dark glasses on gloomy days, or an adult who can't swallow pills.

THE TEXAS SUN
Your body cools off in hot weather by radiating, perspiring and other mechanisms.

To protect airmen against this, doctors at Lackland Air Force Base in Texas measure air temperature, humidity, radiant heat and air movement—elements that affect how fast the body can cool.

If these measurements hit 88 degrees on a special index, they call off heavy outdoor activity. In one test period they had only one case of avoidable heat stroke.

BLUES IN THE NIGHT
When a baby becomes colicky, it's a blue time for parents. But a Chicago doctor believes there may be a relatively simple answer.

Some doctors are convinced the cause of colic is emotional and treat the infant with sedatives, says Dr. Lawrence Breslow.

But a study of 165 infants with colic indicates that the formula may be the culprit. Two-thirds of the babies responded to changes in formula, including the withdrawal of cow's milk.

One-third of the infants did not respond to formula change and may indicate a problem of adjustment between mother and child.

Fifteen Federal Ministers For May 29 Poll Campaign

By JAMES NELSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Fifteen of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's 23 cabinet ministers will participate in the campaigns for the four federal by-elections May 29, says a Conservative party headquarters source.

Groups of ministers will be sent into each constituency, led by one or two ministers from the general area concerned.

Mr. Diefenbaker is not expected to take part personally in any of the by-election rallies. It is rare for prime ministers to do so.

Opposition Leader Pearson will speak at major Liberal party meetings in all four constituencies.

CCF Leader Argue's plans are indefinite.

HELD BY PCs
The vacancies to be filled in the Commons result from two deaths and two resignations. All four seats had been held by Conservatives.

Kings constituency in Prince Edward Island was left vacant with the death in January of John A. Macdonald, whose widow has been nominated by the Conservatives.

Leeds in Ontario became vacant with the death of Hayden Stanton last December.

Restigouche-Madawaska in New Brunswick was opened with the resignation of J. C. Van Horne, who has announced he will campaign for the Conservative candidate in the by-election.

Esquimalt-Saanich on Vancouver Island was opened with the appointment of former defence minister Peakes last October as lieutenant-governor of British Columbia.

FLEMING IN TWO SPOTS
Justice Minister Fulton and External Affairs Minister Green—both B.C. MPs—are sharing an interest in the Esquimalt-Saanich campaign. Finance Minister Fleming also is expected to be a campaigner there.

In Leeds, Works Minister Walker, Labor Minister Starr, Health Minister Monteith and Mr. Fleming—all Ontario ministers—will speak.

The Conservative campaign in Restigouche-Madawaska will bring out State Secretary Doran, Transport Minister Balcer, Defence Production Minister O'Hurley, and Associate Defence Minister Sevigny—all bilingual ministers—and Forestry Minister Hugh John Flemming, former premier of New Brunswick. The constituency has a large French-speaking population.

Fisheries Minister MacLean, the Prince Edward Island representative in the federal cabinet, will lead the ministers campaigning in Kings. Others will be Revenue Minister Nowlan, a Nova Scotian, and Resources Minister Dinsdale and Agriculture Minister Hamilton. Participation of the latter two, both Westerners, was explained

DRY DOCK ENROUTE
JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—A navy dry dock is on its way across the Atlantic in four sections. Tugs are towing the dry dock Big 7 to Dunoon, Scotland, where part of the U.S. Nuclear submarine fleet is based. The trip, which started Monday, is expected to take 32 days. When reassembled, the dry dock will be 425 feet long, 240 feet wide and 72 feet high.

by the riding's interest in the roads-to-resources program and agriculture.

A Liberal headquarters spokesman said Judy LaMarsh, recent Niagara Falls by-election winner, would campaign in the three eastern contests.

The only riding in which the CCF or New Party have so far nominated a candidate is Esquimalt-Saanich. A CCF source said it was hoped both Mr. Argue and Walter Pitman (New Party—Peterborough) would speak there.

From Sound, Businessmen Are Becoming More Vocal

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Businessmen, it seems clear from the amount of material one hears and reads, are becoming more vocal.

Canada's trade policies, investment policies, and other topics are getting the full treatment from scores of business speakers who have thought a lot about the problems involved and who deal with them in their day-to-day operations.

Some quotations from recent speeches:

Trevor F. Moore, vice-president, Imperial Oil Ltd.: "What we need is big thinking, big markets, big capital formation, and big companies which have the resources to compete with large companies abroad. I mean big in the sense of thinking big—not wealthy men."

SEIZE OPPORTUNITY
"It is the so-called big men who create jobs, who look for investment opportunities, assess the risks and make the decisions. Look around at the new businesses of the last 25 years and you can connect nearly all of them to the work and initiative of one far-sighted, venturesome businessman."

J. C. Lockwood, president of Lever Brothers Ltd.: "Sometimes I am asked why we and other businesses like ourselves do not make shares available to the Canadian public. Certainly from an emotional point of view this idea has appeal, but when we look at the real capital needs of this country and the shortage of Canadian funds, it seems a pity to siphon off some of that capital to an international business which is already supplied with all the capital funds it needs."

"In the last 10 years more than two-thirds of our annual net profit has been kept here to invest in our company operation."

Robinson Ord, president of Canadian Chemical Co. Ltd.: "There is a natural tendency to swing from optimism to pessimism and it is therefore worth emphasizing that probably the most significant feature of our recession is that it has not been worse than it has been. While it is difficult to predict how strong the economies of this and other countries are going to be in 1961, there are gratifying signs that the North American recession will remain fairly shallow and that the turning point will come by the middle of the year."

APPEAL TO PUBLIC
Imperial Oil this year is making an experiment in winning wider shareholder interest in its annual meetings, which is another way of informing a widening public.

Imperial's annual meeting will be held April 28 in the concert hall of the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, but Montreal shareholders will be able to watch the proceedings on a nine by 12-foot screen in the ballroom of the Mount Royal Hotel in that city, brought there by closed-circuit television. Two Imperial directors and members of senior management will be on hand in Montreal to answer questions arising there.

In Toronto, two cameras will take over-all shots and a third camera will shoot close-ups of company and shareholder speakers.

FRIENDSHIP PACT BEGINS
HONG KONG (Reuters)—A friendship and non-aggression treaty signed by Communist China and Cambodia in Peking Dec. 19 came into force today when instruments of ratification were exchanged in Phnom Penh, Cambodia, the New China news agency reported.

INDIAN PLANE MISSING
NEW DELHI (Reuters)—An Indian air force plane is missing on a supply dropping mission in the border area between India and Chinese-ruled Tibet. Defence minister V. K. Krishna Menon, told Parliament today the aircraft with nine persons aboard took off Monday with 12 hours' fuel. Troops, helicopters, and planes were scouring the region.
